

Hawkeyes Spoil Husker Opener

IOWA CITY, Ia. — Iowa's assistant sports information director ran out onto the field, waving his arms in jubilation as the final seconds ticked off the clock.

An Iowa coed hugged a policeman. A member of the chain gang crew, wearing the black and white striped official's uniform, leaped in the air and almost flew into the tunnel leading into the Hawkeyes' dressing room.

A record Kinnick Stadium crowd of 60,160 counted down the last 15 seconds like they were the last 15 seconds to a national championship. They tore down the goalposts in the north end zone.

A pipedream had become a reality. Iowa, a 57-point loser to Nebraska last year, shocked the seventh-ranked Cornhuskers, 10-7, here last Saturday in the season opener.

As frustrating as the loss was, even Nebraska fans would have to concede Hawkeye fans their place in the sun. After all, they had waited 25 years to celebrate a win this big.

Gus Schrader of the Cedar Rapids Gazette has covered Iowa football since 1941. He called this year's win over the Cornhuskers Iowa's biggest since the Hawkeyes beat Ohio State, 6-0, to get into the 1956 Rose Bowl.

Twenty-five years ago, the goalposts were wooden and Ike was president.

The key was defense. The motive was revenge. The catalyst was emotion. On a day when Wisconsin upset No. 1 Michigan and Georgia Tech upset No. 2 Alabama, Iowa checked Nebraska to only 150 yards rushing. The Huskers did outgain the Hawkeyes in total offense, 231-202. But Iowa's defense recovered three fumbles and intercepted two passes.

Iowa Coach Hayden Fry did the only appropriate thing he could do. He awarded the game ball to Hawkeye defensive coordinator Bill Brashler.

Fry, however, was almost as pleased with his offense for keeping the ball away from Nebraska. The Hawkeyes finished with a 24-second advantage in time of possession.

They also converted their best offensive opportunity into their only touchdown.

Lockerroom Chatter

The Huskers

Tom Osborne, head coach — "This was one of the hardest losses for us since I've been here. They (Iowa) out-played and out-coached us. Any time we lose a game, it's my fault. If our players aren't good enough, then I should have done a better job of recruiting. If our players don't perform well, then we should have done a better job of preparing them. I think we have better players, overall, than Iowa does...I think.

"I think we got a little stronger as the game went along, but I felt we weren't even in the game in the first half. By the end of the third quarter we had settled down and weren't doing so many crazy things. Losing Steve McWhirter (strained knee late in the first quarter) really hurt us because we were thin at the linebacker spots to begin with. That left us with only two linebackers there that we really had confidence in, and with Iowa moving around so much, we needed mobility and experience in that spot.

"Two years ago over here we also had a lot of turnovers in the first half of the game, but then they stopped and we came back to win the game (24-21). This time we had some chances in the second half, but we never were able to take advantage of them. Instead, we kept making mistakes right up to the end."

Mark Mauer, quarterback — "Coach Osborne gave me the starting chance I've been asking for all these years, and I blew it. I wasn't nervous, really. I was just anxious to see how I was going to do after finally getting a chance."

Nate Mason, back-up quarterback — "We've got to do a lot better job of execution. That's what it all comes down to. I'm sure Mark (Mauer) feels the same way about it. It was real frustrating. The problem was, I think that the whole team was a little too psyched up. We can play a lot better if everyone does his part. We all made mistakes."

Jimmy Williams, defensive end — "I don't think we were physical enough. The reason I say that is, we didn't out-hit their defense, and it showed. That was the difference in the ball game. We're going to have to bounce back now. We've got a good team, and this may help us. It was a big lesson for us. The only way to go now is up, and that's what we intend to do."

Rodney Lewis, cornerback — "We're a better defensive club than that, and now we have to show that we can come back. Raise our heads up and play ball. We had our chances. We could have dominated them more, and we could have taken the sting right out of them, but it's over. That game is history."

Roger Craig, I-back — "We have a lot to work on now, but we've got the personnel to come back from this. Iowa was ready for us, but we made too many mistakes and I take a lot of that blame myself. I was trying too hard. Coach (Mike) Corgan tells me to concentrate on the ball and carrying it in the right hand, but the crowd gets you pumped up, and you want to get in there and score right away. I should have taken it step-by-step. In the future I'm not going to worry about scoring. I'm just going to concentrate on holding onto the ball. My goal now is not to fumble any more. It's a terrible feeling."

The Hawkeyes

Hayden Fry, head coach — "At this minute, this is the greatest victory of my life. I'm getting to be an old man and I don't want to hurt any of my other teams that pulled off upsets at SMU and North Texas State. But while I've been at Iowa, this is far and away my greatest victory. If you stay with this game long enough, the worm will turn. When you get your tail kicked in, you want something awful bad. We've worked hard for Nebraska all winter, all spring and all summer. We had to show our character to hang on and we did. But this is just one game. We can't be High School Harrys and rejoice. We have to be consistent. Some-day, we want our program to be like Nebraska's."

Eddie Phillips, running back — "Coach Fry told us to dedicate this game to somebody we really cared for, so I dedicated this game to my mom and my family in Michigan. Everything I did (including rushing for 94 yards) was for them because I love every one of them. They're my pride and joy. We didn't even think about last year. Everything was low key for Nebraska. It's a new year. Just ask the Pittsburgh Steelers. And look at what Wisconsin did to Michigan today. Everybody gets another chance."

Mark Bortz, defensive tackle — "It's a dream come true. A lot of people had doubts about our winning, but we knew we were coming on and the coaching staff got us going. Everybody was relaxed and we just put it all together. I think the difference over last year was more mental than physical."

Pete Gales, quarterback — "This is definitely the biggest thrill of my athletic life. It's even more thrilling since my sister got married today in New Jersey. I figure this is the best present I could have given her. We wanted to be low key. I think that's why the offense played extremely well and the defense played great."

Dave Maylan, offensive guard — "Dave Rimington (Nebraska center) is a good friend of mine, and I told him the third time was our turn. Nebraska's players were great after the game. They have a class program and I'll be cheering for them the rest of the year. At Iowa, we've been down and it's affected us. We're only human. But football is still a state of mind. If you've got something in your head and you want it bad enough to work hard to get it, you can get it."

Lou King, linebacker — "I was second-team last year when we got blown out at Nebraska. That was so frustrating, we didn't want to face anybody or look at anybody. We got a lot of sympathy. But we didn't need it. Only losers accept sympathy. Revenge is a very important part of success."

Injury Report

Only two Huskers came away from the Iowa game with new injuries, and both are listed as questionable for Saturday's home opener against Florida State. Linebacker Steve McWhirter suffered a strained knee in the first quarter at Iowa City and is awaiting further word on the extent of the injury. Offensive tackle Jeff Kwapick suffered a strained elbow and is also questionable. Defensive back Ric Lindquist bruised a calf muscle and was held out of the Iowa game, but could be back for FSU.

The Way We See It...

Tim Moreland

KFOR Radio, Lincoln

"I think Nebraska will beat Florida State, but I think it will be awfully close based on what I saw at Iowa City. If you have to search for a key, Nebraska will have the incentive of an embarrassing loss to Florida State at home last year, coupled with the even more embarrassing loss to Iowa in last Saturday's opener. The defense needs to get better organized, and offensively the Huskers must get better line play and better play from the quarterbacks. The Iowa game raised several questions, but I'll say 21-17 Nebraska."

Randy York

Lincoln Journal-Star

"Florida State coach Bobby Bowden said he wishes Nebraska would have beaten Iowa, 80-0, instead of losing. Bowden has been around long enough to know there are better things than catching Nebraska on the rebound. Remember 1977? Nebraska was upset by Washington State in the opener, and beat Alabama the next week. Similar situation, similar results. Nebraska 24, Florida State 13."

The Huskers Say....

Huskers Illustrated

"Nebraska losses are rare. Back-to-back losses are even more rare. Add to that the fact that Florida State defeated the Cornhuskers in front of their home fans last season, and Saturday afternoon should be a long one for the Seminoles. Florida State will find itself in the unenviable position of being in the wrong place at the wrong time. Nebraska will make dramatic progress in a week of intense practice. And the Huskers will prevail, 20-13."

Bob Warren

WCTV, Tallahassee

"Florida State's offense has been pathetic in the first two games. The offensive line has been eaten alive. But I'm convinced that Bobby Bowden has been holding something back. Florida State lives and dies with its wide receivers, and Bowden has not been using them. That is so uncharacteristic of his teams. Jesse Hester has speed to burn and the softest hands you'll ever see. I have to believe Nebraska will see more of him than Louisville or Memphis State did. I'm convinced if the offense does come around and if the defense plays the same as it has, Florida State will win again in Lincoln. I'll say the Seminoles in a close one, 23-20."

Rod Meadows

WTNT Radio, Tallahassee

"We carry the Nebraska games on our station and the way it sounded against Iowa, Nebraska's offense isn't much further along than Florida State's. The Seminoles have a lot of talent on offense, but it's young talent, and I think it's asking too much from them to go into Lincoln and win again. FSU has the fastest team it's ever had, and I think Bowden has been a little conservative with the first two opponents, so he won't tip his hand to the next five on Murderers' Row — Nebraska, Ohio State, Notre Dame, Pitt and LSU. Revenge is a definite factor. Florida State's defense is excellent, but Nebraska defense will be better in this one. I think it will be low-scoring and Nebraska will win, 13-7."

Bill McGrotha

Tallahassee Democrat

(In his 29th season covering the Seminoles) "Nebraska's offense will be far and away better than anything Florida State has seen this year. FSU's own offense cannot possibly be as bad as it has looked so far. It should get a few points on the board, but not many. I don't believe Bowden is holding back. He may have a surprising play or two for Nebraska, but I can't believe it's a large-scale thing. Bowden has been known to come up with some football miracles, but I can't see it happening at Nebraska two years in a row. The Huskers will be tougher for Florida State to beat on the road than Pitt or Ohio State. If I have to pick a score, I guess I'll say Nebraska 24, Florida State 10."

Coach Osborne's Evaluation

When things don't go right for a football team, the quarterback is usually the first to draw criticism. So it was following Nebraska's disappointing 10-7 upset loss to Iowa. Cornhusker quarterback Mark Mauer, a senior, and Nate Mason, a junior, took the brunt of the blame.

In fairness to them, however, Nebraska head Coach Tom Osborne said it would have been difficult for any quarterback to do well given the way the Huskers' offensive line graded against Iowa. "We really feel, or felt, we had a fine offensive line. They just didn't move people," Osborne said. "They graded worse than they had all fall. Up front, we just weren't controlling people."

"When you're not getting any contributions from the line, it's hard to look good if you're playing quarterback or running back because you can't get started. I felt our plays were sound. We just weren't beating their people."

According to Osborne, no player in the offensive line graded well enough for winning football, and as a result, he said some changes may be made there before Nebraska opens its home season against Florida State Saturday. "Only a handful of players graded as well as they should have," he said.

Osborne said the Iowa game "was very reminiscent" of the Alabama game in 1978 — the Cornhuskers lost to the Crimson Tide, 20-3, but came back to win nine straight. That year, "we had what we thought were good people there (in the offensive line), too, and we didn't play good football at all up front.

"As a team, you could probably count the number of players who graded well on one hand," he said of last Saturday's effort.

Osborne was not pleased with the quarterbacking, either. "It's got to get better," he said, adding that in an attempt to do that, sophomore Turner Gill probably will be given an opportunity to play against Florida State.

"I thought about putting Turner in (against Iowa). The only thing I can say is, we were trying to give our quarterbacks a feel for the game. We tried to look at two quarterbacks in the game, and it's very hard to get three quarterbacks in there. I think, at this point, Turner probably deserves a chance to play."

Osborne said trying to rebound against a team like Florida State will be difficult, but "our main opponent right now is ourselves. We have to start doing a better job ourselves before we worry about anyone else. All we can do is come back and try to play the best we can."

The fact that Florida State defeated the Huskers 18-14 last season in Lincoln should provide some extra incentive, he said, but "revenge can only take you so far. You still have to play well, though. That's the key. We need to be a little more consistent and have a little better effort."

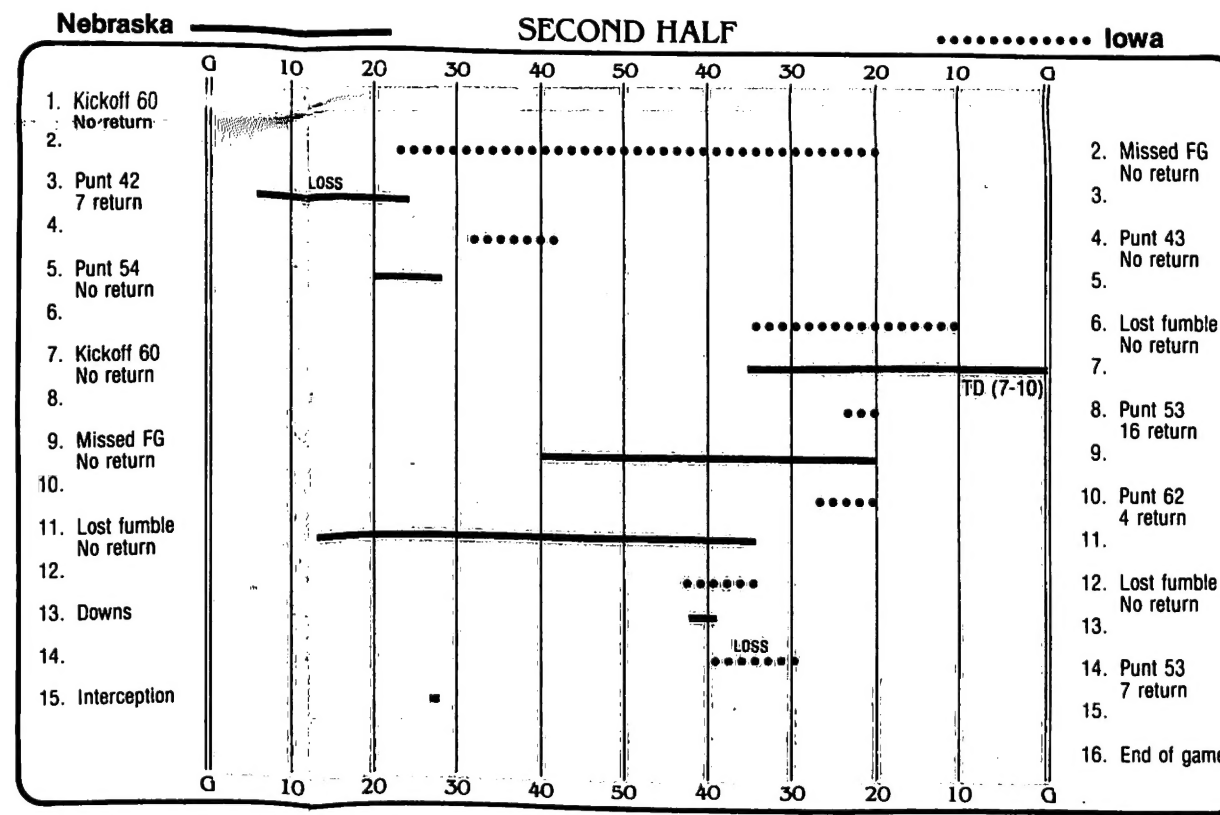

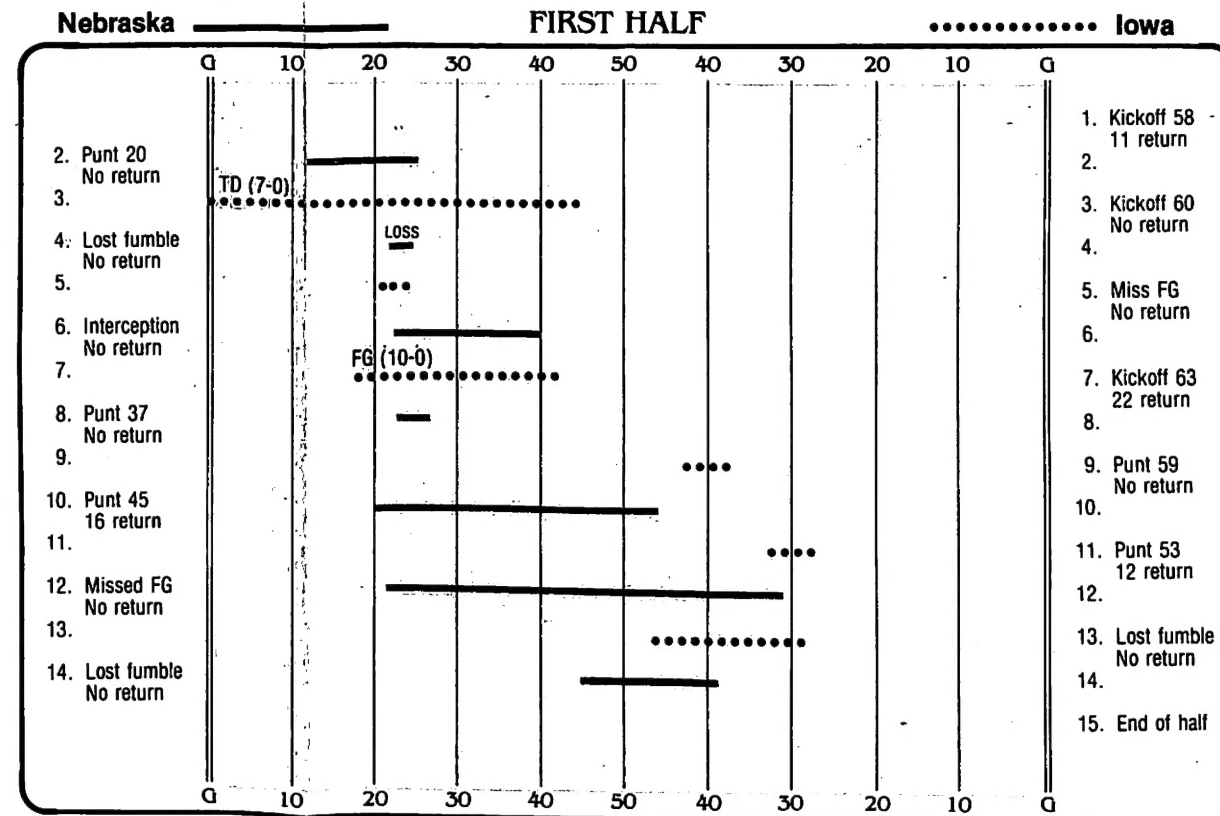

Florida State, which used that stunner at Lincoln in 1980 to fuel national championship hopes, has opened the 1981 season with two easy victories, both featuring a fierce defense and little offense.

The Seminoles of Coach Bobby Bowden blanked Louisville, 17-0, in their opener, then edged Memphis State, 10-5, last Saturday. The contest at Nebraska opens a string of FSU road dates which takes the strong independent club next to Ohio State, Notre Dame, Pittsburgh and Louisiana State. They defeated Pitt last year in another shocker, but lost to Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl for the second straight year to miss any outside shot at a national crown.

This season the defense has been surprisingly tough, after graduating almost all of an outstanding crew from 1980. Louisville managed only seven first downs and but 65 yards rushing, with 68 more coming in the air. Meanwhile, FSU was rushing for but 95, 89 of that by freshman tailback Billy Allen. The Cleveland youngster was "discovered" at a European coaching clinic playing Air Force football.

Last week against Memphis State senior fullback Michael Whiting scored the clinching touchdown after freshman kicking sensation Mike Rendina booted a 46-yard field goal. Senior punter Rohn Stark is regarded as perhaps the best in the nation. Quarterback Rick Stockstill, who hit 14 of 24 passes for 126 yards against Louisville, was 11 of 22 for 163 yards against Memphis State last Saturday.
